The cute fact of the Snowflake is now the talk of Jersey. The bleating lamb is quiet, but warm.

There is great fear and joy in the minds of just two classes of people in the world—those who have and those who have not. Lowell Courier.

Mr. Bass (the famous) is very busy. His wife owns, which cost 250,000 dollars, erected on the banks of Loch Lomond, in order to keep a deer in the immediate vicinity of a certain whisky.

A French country gentleman is small-minded that he has invented a method by which every pig feeds and fattens at the bottom of the pen. Hits are heavy.

A little girl was bitten by a dog at Orange county, N. Y., the other day, from the effects of which she died. The dog is owned by a wealthy man, the girl's father—which will be for $400.

According to the veracious local publication, Alice, a snow climbed into a tree, watched through the orchard day. The mistress of domestic, identified said run away, the dog, and managed to be cool.

At a recent sale of Welsh black cattle, four-year-old cow brought 350 guineas, and eight animals in the herd equally high prices. These animals are no larger than Jersey, measuring four hands high at the shoulders. Black is the prevailing color.

Dealers, butchers and other shippers of supplies have been complaining of the non-arrival of stock for the Christmas market on account of the severe storm to railroad traffic by the late flood and an true observer reports accordingly watched the outward trains yesterday to see what the prospects were for the butchers to get our carcasses to market in the usual standard.
There is being at present considerable excitement in Muscovy—a small town of two dozen houses of log-built—regarding the "Queen Chase," weighing 20 pounds, deceased, and imbedded in ice, down to the big animal of this locality, which revolutionized things a block in the vicinity of the Ice Company's office. Everybody discussed the big sturgeon, but the fact remains that the greater part of the meaty carcass of Dan Packer was not appreciated, and at last accounts had not and orange Hood. The reason why withstanding the railroad facilities the market seemed to be over supplied, as all Muscovy points, Forks and Martinsville sent in large quantities of great substance and they swung to huge hog hooks until it nearly very unusual thing. We Packer's sturgeon, but the fact remains that pleasant, quaint and pump carcass back ducks were seen in all directions. Inside pickets was seen a decent stiff in about an hundred of human bodies, and the last was provided for.
Many of the deaths in record made every locality please. A. H. Johnson for the Albright fire in the Industrial Exposition building, the display made it would be difficult to surpass in any city of the union. Best fat cattle, entirely any quiet, huge sheep, steers of ten weighing 1,500 pounds and fat as butter. A young ox weighing 2,500 pounds, pigs of eight or months weighing 600 and 700 pounds, white plucky swine pushing it by in all directions and the whole dressed in the highest style and decorated with rosettes and artificial flowers.
Gilbert Bros. auto pr-sented a magnificent spider.
Prime four-year old steers from Prineville fornished beef that would suit the most exacting John Bull as supply the place of the "roast beef of old England." Very large hogs, weighing as respectively 640 and 1005 pound, attracted much attention, while the barnyard was occupied by four score sheep, scored all unsurpassed in the whole shorthorn, style of fatted crits.
Burkhart & Spaulding "go, left," as their cattle only arrived last night; but they promise to astoniish the natives next week.
At the Willow Creek Market on Oak street, kept by Jack Healy, was seen the finest beef. A 1 age on passed on S. S. Reed a Bache of 1,980 pounds, and weighing 1450 pounds was simply immense, while others from M. Gilfain's ran it on Snyder's saloon were quite as fat and large. An Angus grade, and numerous fine sheep, plenty of pork, ran to causall, a black bear, "turned and an assortment where one not able to suit his taste would be hard to please.
J. F. Keller & Co., as usual, presented a well stocked shop. Hogs of all sizes from 700 down to seven pounds, sheep which looked as if carved out of half saw logs, beef of nine months old that would would delight the eyes of an epicure were hung around in all directions.
The other shops around town were all well supplied and if anybody in Portland goes hungry tomorrow it will not be the fault of our butchers or poultrymen.
The fish market of Portland is ever conspicuous favorably with the most any poultry market except in the article of salmon, of which plenty can be found at all times, albeit now a "little off" in both flavor and color. Trout, soles, flounders, rock cods and lobsters are the principal varieties now to be obtained, with squids for the few who fancy them. Oysters, both eastern and native, are also more plentiful.
As for the grocery stores it would take a column to give any idea of the luxuries and delicacies with which they are furnished. For the cranberry sauces to accompany the turkey, the bogus of Mexico furnishes the tide. Oranges from southern California and the Sandwich Islands, lemons and bananas from Mexico, Turkey figs, dates from Malaga, nuts from every quarter of the world, supply materials for dessert, while jellies, jams, sauces, pickles and cheese, eggs, etc., etc., and vegetables of all kinds, are provided without stint.
The subject of liquors is a delicate one in these days of prohibition. Suffice it to say that our dea-ers are thoroughly alive to the line from the most delicate champagne down to rye without. We leave every one's name in his own selections. At the Immortal Dackeye he said: "Gentlemen are always welcome to the best which no stranger ham should touch the drinks I have are those in mine." In conclusion, THE OREGONIAN wishes all "right merry Christmas, and a happy New Year," and many happy returns of the same.
